IS A MAN OF MANY TRIALS

Bates Has Hung Three Juries.

His Majority Is Constantly Growing, and He Is Confident.

Repeated Efforts to Convict Tooele Ranchman of the Theft of Construction Company Horses.

Few men have had as many trials as George A. Bates, a Tooele county ranch-But he is a man of few convictions. His third trial was finished yesterday in the District court and ended, as did the previous trials, with a hung jury. At his At the second only two jurors thought Bates guilty. Yesterday the jury was hing by one man. At this rate James F. Smith, Bates's attorney, figures that his client will finally be acquitted—if he lives long enough. The fourth trial is scheduled to begin December 5.

Case Is a Landmark. Case Is a Landmark.

So familiar has the State vs. Bates become that it is regarded as one of the landmarks of the county. The farmers have come to regard jury fees in the Bates case as a regular part of their annual revenue. When they die they feel sure that their soms will have a certain though small income upon which to raise families. But Atterney Smith threatens to upset their calculations. He says he is going to take a change of venue to Salt Lake county y for the next trial.

His Alleged Crime.

His Alleged Crime.

Bates was arrested June 12, 1903, for stealing three horses belonging to the Utah Construction company. It was alleged that he took the animals to Ogden and sold them there to one C. O. Morey. The defense was that Bates had put two horses in a corral on his ranch to look at their brands. After examining them, he eastned he turned them loose. Morey and sheriff Bailey of Weber county both testified that he sold the horses in Ogden. The defense introduced six witnesses who swore that Bates was in Tooele county on the day the horses were sold. There was considerable conflict in the testimony on both sides. Autorney Smith says that Tooele people are prejudiced against his client because he was once convicted of stealing a calf.

Minority Vote Decreasing.

Minority Vote Decreasing.

Bates was first tried in June, 1963, when the jury voted five for acquittal and three for conviction. In February, 1994, the second trial was pulled off, and the jury stood six to two. At the last trial but one of the eight men insisted on the guilt of the defendant. Bates has been out on bond most of the time since his arrest.

Mr. Smith returned to Salt Lake last picht.

EXHIBITS FOR PORTLAND.

Utah's Best Features at St. Louis Will Be Taken West.

Preliminary arrangements for Utah's exhibit at the Lewis and Clark exposition in Biolit at the Lewis and Clark exposition in Fortland next year were made yesterday by the State commissioners at the meeting held in the Governor's office. It was de-cided to send a committee to St. Louis to examine the exhibits there and select the most important ones and those most like-ly to benefit Utah at Portland. These ex-hibits will be sent to Portland when the St. Louis fair is over and boxed until it is time to set them up in the Utah building. This committee is to be composed of H.

Passing of an Old Institution.

Great was the surprise caused by the public announcement in another column of the discontinuation of business of the old established jewelry concern of W. W. Hall, 227 Main street. Owing to continued ill health Mr. Hall has been forced to give up a lucrative business and remove to another climate, and in order to leave in the very near future will be compelled to sacrifice his high-grade stock of diamonds, watches, grade stock of diamonds, watches, jewelry, silverware, etc., at public auction, regardless of cost. The stock is a very carefully selected one, and this be a rare opportunity to secure any article out of the stock at a greatly reduced price. The sale will commence Saturday, Oct. 23nd, at 2:30 and 7 p. m. commence and will continue at these hours until everything, including fixtures, are sold.

Messrs Sinclair and Gabriel, who Messrs. Sinclair and Gabriel, who have a national reputation as jewelery suctioneers, and who made such a success of Mr. Hall's last sale, have been especially engaged to conduct this sale.

' Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by all leading druggists,

He Was Tried in Utah for Murder

H. H. Pearson Has a Hot Time Dodging His Former Attorney in Honolulu.

The story of an ineffectual attempt to errest on board a steamer at Honolulu told in a recent number of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser, published in Honolulu. The attempted arrest was not or ecount of the alleged murder, in a direct way, but was the result of the man's failure to pay the lawyer who defended him at the trial. The culprit was H. H. Pearson, and failure to pay the lawyer who defended him at the trial.

The culprit was H. H. Pearson, and the attorney who swore out the warrant against him at Honolulu was Judge Henry E. Highton, formerly of San Francisco. Highton claims that in 1886 he was living at the Baldwin hotel in San Francisco, which was at that time kept by H. H. Pearson's father. The younger Pearson was then on a cattle ranch in Utah. Pearson and a companion made a trip from the ranch to the town of Provo, and it is alleged that during a period of intexication Pearson shot and killed his companion. He was arrested and tried for murder before Judge Henderson, the prosecution having been handled by Judge W. H. Dickson.

Judge Highton says he was asked by Pearson's father and mother to go to Utah to defend their son, and that he went to Utah and expended several thousand dollars on the case for no part of which was he ever reimbursed. The trial lasted for seven weeks and the result was a verdict of involuntary mansiaughter, sentence having been suspended for one year. This gave Pearson his liberty.

According to the Honolulu newspaper, Pearson for some time led an adventurous life in the Pacific Islands. but more was a verdict of involuntary manishing there, sentence having been suspended for one year. This gave Pearson his liberty.

According to the Honolulu newspaper, Pearson for some time led an adventurous life in the Pacific islands, but more recently has been in the employ of an Eastern bank, from which he is accredited with receiving a large salary. On the occasion of his attempted arrest at Honolulu he was on the way to San Francisco from a trip around the world. He had made a great display of wealth on board the steamer, it is said, and when Judge Highton heard of this he determined to make an effort to secure the money so long due him for legal services. He addressed a note to Pearson and sent it to the steamer by a detective as soon as the vessel arrived at Honolulu. The addressee claimed to have no knowledge of Judge Highton, saying it was a case of mistaken identity. Then Highton went to the steamer and saw the man, who, he declared was his former client. The Judge was whisked up town in a hack, papers were secured and a deputy sheriff went to the steamer to arrest Pearson. But no Pearson was to be found. The stateroom, for which he had paid 400 extra to be in a particular location, was vacant. The vessel was searched from stem to stern and from top to bottom, the officers even going with the steamer until the pilot was dropped, but Pearson was not apprehended, nor was the slightest clue to his whereabouts obtained. The deputy sheriff left a copy of the summons with a man who was temporarily occupying Pearson's stateroom.

Judge Dickson, when asked last night in regard to the Pearson murder case, said he remembered it very well, aithough he could not recall the name of the man who was killed. Pearson and this young man had been on a spree together, and the killing was the result of a drunken quarrel. Pearson was tried at Prove, and Judge Highton defended him aione so far as the legal work was concerned Friends put in good work for the accused, however, and the jury, largely in consideration of the showing t

ATTIAS OUT ON BOND.

Western Federation of Miners Becomes Surety for Greek Physician.

Dr. P. G. P. Attias was arrested vesterday morning by Deputy Sheriff Booth on the charge of practicing medicine without a license, preferred against him by Leon Skiiris. Skliris is the man whose income by handling Greek laborers for the smelters and railroads is imperiled by the fact that the Greeks have organized and are now ailled with the Western Federa-tion of Miners. This has been largely ac-complished through Attias, acting in con-junction with A. W. Charter of the fed-oration.

Dr. Attias was released last evening on bonds furnished by the American Federation of Labor. He was arrested in his apartments in a First South street lodging-house. Mr. Charter was with him at the time. Dr. Attias and the deputy proceeded at once to the county jall, where Dr. Attias remained until a meeting of the officers of the federation in this city was called. Then he was taken to Bingham, where he appeared before J. J. Williams, the Justice of the Peace before whom Skilris swore out his warrant. Concerning his arrest and the allegations that he has been hiding. Dr. Attias said:

"I have no cause to fear this trumpedup charge. It is made with a view to hinder me in my work with the organization of the Greeks. It was a last resort. I moved to the rooms where I was arrested in order that I might be able to finish certain work in connection with this organization, work which must be done without possibility of hindrance.

"So far as Skilris is concerned, he is welcome to bring up anything he can find against me. I have no cause to fear the publicity of my past history. I hope he does not fear the same thing, for if he does not fear the same thing, for if he does not fear the same thing, for if he does not fear the same thing, for if he does not fear the same thing, for if he does things may turn out unpleasantly for him I can say this: Skilris's connection with the labor problem in Utah is now subject to searching investigation.

"I will further say that neither this arrest nor any other steps which Skilris and Dr. Attias was released last evening or

"I will further say that neither this ar rest nor any other steps which Skilris and the Descret News may choose to attemp will stop my work in behalf of my coun will stop my work in behalf of my countrymen.

A. W. Charter was equally vigorous in his assertions as to Dr. Attias's connection with the organization work. "The arrest," said he, "was made as a result of a warrant sworn out by Skiltris, and the warrant was issued to hart Dr. Attias with his countrymen and with the officers of the federation. In regard to the latter it has signally falled. And, so far as the Greeks are concerned, I personally know that many proffers of assistance in the way of bail came to Dr. Attias during the day. These, however, he refused, pre-terring to gain his liberty through the bond which the federation will furnish."

Dr. Attias's ball was fixed last evening at $100 cash. This was immediately furnished by the officials of the Western Federation of Labor, who accompanied him to Bingham, where the straignment took place.

The testimony was taken during the summer, beand it is expected that the attorneys will occupy a week in presenting arguments. A. L. Hoppaugh of this city, represents the plaintiffs, occupied the entire day yesterday and had not finished when court adjourned shortly before b o'clock. Mr.

Breckenridge will resume his argument
this morning.
Readers of The Tribune are familiar with the case of Harris & Co. vs. Chipman, as it has been one of long standing, and the plaintiff has already been granted a judgment of $25,000 against the defendant.

What Plaintiffs Claim.

What Plaintiffs Claim.

The plaintiff claims that in the years 1829-1920 it deposited a large sum of money with James Chipman, banker, of American Fork, to pay for cattle which were to be shipped to it by its agents, Bradshaw Bros. of American Fork. The cattle were to be shipped to Harris & Co. and drafts to cover their cost made upon the sum placed to the firm's credit with the Chipman bank. Plaintiff claims that Mr. Chipman knew of the arrangement between Harris & Co. and Bradshaw Bros. but allowed Bradshaw Bros to check upon the Harris & Co. fund for their personal use to the sum of $55,999, and this sum Harris & Co. now seek to recover from James Chipman.

City Wins in Paving Case.

Sait Lake City won its case against T. W. Jennings and other property owners on First street, in Judgo Hall's court yesterday. This was the suit which the property owners brought to get an injunction restraining Sait Lake City and the City Treasurer from carrying on the paving of First street, on the ground that they could not afford the assessment. The street is now paved and open to traffic. It was urged by the City Attorney, in arguing the case, that the street railway company has refused to pave the car tracks on account of the suit that has been pending for so long. On this car tracks on account of the sult that has been pending for so long. On this ground the court denied the injunction and dismissed the case at the defendants' cost.

RIO GRANDE IS ENJOINED

Judge Hall Permanently Restrains Company From Closing Street.

Property owners on Fourth West have finally been successful in their efforts to block the improvements which the Rio Grande Western Rallway company was going to make in that part of the city. Judge Hall yesterday made the temporary injunction, which was issued some time ago to restrain the company from closing up that street, a permanent one. This ends a long and determined fight which the proposed work which the Rio Grande would have had to do in order to build a new depot. The granting of the franchise by the Council was bitterly contested, and when this endeavor proved to be futile the matter was taken to the courts on the ground that the closing of the street would injure the property owners. A temporary injunction was granted and the affair was allowed to rest for a while. But the case came up to be disposed of yesterday and that Injunction was made permanent.

It is made against the Rio Grande Western Rallway company and the City Council of Sait Lake. It forbids the former from closing the said street and it forbids the Council to allow the company to close it. Property owners on Fourth West have pany to close it.

Court Notes.

Theodore Paulos of this city and Wil-liam D. Myers of Euroka filed petitions in bankruptcy yesterday in Judge Mar-shall's court. The habilities of the former are $59.49 and his assets $50, while the assets of the latter are $23 and his lia-bilities $1349.59.

PACKING PLANT BURNS.

No Water Was Available, and the Firemen Were Helpless.

Knight & Co.'s packing plant at North Sait Lake burned early yesterday morning, with a loss amounting to nearly $15,000. Owing to the fact that the water supply was cut off, the fire department was unable to do much toward checking the flames, and the entire plant was ravaged by the blaze. The origin of the fire is a mystery and the officials of the company suspect that it was the work of firebugs.

Suspected Crook Abuses the Officers When They Undertake to Question Him.

Salt Lake has a highwayman who is in truth "the poor man's friend." Phi anthropists, Presidential candidates and others have claimed this title, but none more deserving than the tender-heart ed thug, who on Wednesday night refused to take $1.50 from a well-known nerchant of this city, thinking that he was robbing a poor man. The tale reads like a myth or a "pipe" from the brain of some overworked "penny-dreadful" au thor, but it is in reality a truth.

The man was on his way home, attired in his working clothes and his cash assets consisted of but $1.50. When the highwayman, who is described as the same well-dressed, gentlemanly fellow who has turned several tricks in this city of late, completed the search of his victim's pockets and found but $1.50, he hesitated a moment before appropriating the money. "You wouldn't take the last dollar a poor man had, would you" inquired the grain dealer, as the hold-up gazed at the two pieces of silver in the moonlight.

SALT LAKE THEATER—Concert by Smma Lucy Gates and the Salt Lake Symphony Orel stra. GRAND THEATER—"The Sign of the Four," a dramatization of Conan Doyle's novel of that name.

One of Utah's most gifted singers was heard in Salt Lake last night. An audience, large, but not so large as the concert deserved, listened with delight to Emma Lucy Gates. She received an enthusiastic welcome. In that welcome was expressed admiration for a girl of Utah, a girl of talent who with commendable ambition has prepared herself for a notable career.

bition has prepared herself for a notable career.

Miss Gates's numbers were sufficiently varied to reveal all the qualities of her voice, ranging as they did from grand opera selections to a lively French song. Her range was shown in the aria from "Lucia de Lammermoor" as was the purity of all her tones, the trilling being clear and sweet and admirably done. The quality of brilliancy was best shown in the French song, "La Fee aux Chansons" An East Indian song, quaint and fantastic, was brightly rendered, and there was vivacity in the humorous number, "To My First Love," though this was not one of the most pleasing. In songs that depend vacity in the humorous number, "To My First Love," though this was not one of the most pleasing. In songs that depend much upon expression, upon the manifestation of tender feeling. Miss Gates was not so satisfying. In "L'Enfant" and the "Screnade," by Gouned, she did not manifest the expected warmth and fervor. There was a certain coldness in her tones in these songs that may have been due to a diffidence that held her archness and warmth in reserve. It is a trying experience for an artist to come before a home audience. Its influence often enforces a restraint of feeling that is not checked elsewhere. There was a noticeable demureness in the young singer's manner last night, which, while charming to see, may have indicated a lack of perfect control, due to the very fact that she was among friends, friends who expected so much of her. There was manifest a sense of sureness, however, in her closing number, the "Michaela" aria from "Carmen," in which her rare voice was sweet and strong and she was the artist triumphant. She had been enthusiastically applied for every number, but at the close of the "Carmen" selection came a storm that would not be stilled until she went to the plane and to her own accompaniment

"Carmen" selection came a storm that would not be stilled until she went to the piano and to her own accompaniment sang "The Bloom is on the Rye."

The Symphony orchestra was an organization to be proud of last night. With a strength of forty members it furnished enough music to show that it is capable of great things. Its "Oberon" overture was delightful, to many undoubtedly the most delightful of its numbers. The unique "Slavonic Dance" was admirably given, the "Ronde D'Amour" was so daintily and captivatingly played that the orchestra had to repeat it, the selection from "The Queen of Sheba," with the buzzing of the bees, charmed, and the march, "Pomp and Circumstance." stirred and exhilarated. Mr. Flashman's flute obligate for Miss Gates's "Serenade," was very sweet. Mr. Shepherd accompanied Miss Gates in her songe, faultiesally, of course.

Rev. Mr. Goshen made an earnest exhortation for support of the orchestra, and as he had a good anecdoto which he could not very well use in the pulpit, he took the opportunity to send it among the people from the stage.

people from the stage. Jane Corcoran, supported by Andrew Robson, will be at the Salt Lake Theater tonight in the charming play, "Pretty Peggy.

Peggy."

Patrons who visited the Grand last evening in the hope of seeing a pleasing presentation of 'The Sign of the Four' were sentation of 'The Sign of the Four' were not disappointed. In the dramatization several libertless are taken with the play as written by Conan Doyle, but they do not detract in the least from its interest. There is too much horse play in one or two of the acis, the love-making of Mrs. Hudson in the second and the scene between Mordecal Smith and his wife in the closing act being altogether tiresome. On the whole however, the play was capably presented and the interest of the audience was held to the close. True S James in the role of Sherlock Holmes hardly came up to the ideal az far as the physical man was concerned, but the note of Sherlock Holmes hardly came up to the ideal az far as the physical man was concerned, but the role of Wiggins was an able assistant to the great detective and was generously applauded by the andience. Miss Carrie Le Moyne as Mrs. Shotto is not only attractive in appearance, but on the whole one of the most capable members of the company. Norman R. Field as Dr. John Watson: Walter Goodrich, as Atheley Jones; Frank Moynihan, as Jonathan Small; C. S. Coons, as Maj. Shotto: Miss Grace Turner, as Mary Marison, and Miss Marian Drew were the other members of the company, each of whom did his or her full share in making the play the success it was. "The Sign of the Four" will be presented again tonight tomorrow night and at the Saturday matinee.
